

Dr. Terence Walters

PhD, MPH

NATIONAL DISASTER COORDINATOR

Dr. Terence Walters is the National Disaster Coordinator of NaDMA. The appointment took effect Tuesday, 4 October 2022.

Dr. Walters is no stranger to the position or Agency as he served as both Deputy Disaster Coordinator and Acting National Disaster Coordinator during the period 2009 to 2017.

While out of active Disaster Management duty, Dr. Walters honed his knowledge in the field, achieving a PhD in Public Policy and Administration with a focus in Emergency Management in April 2021 and also completed the Master of Philosophy (MPhil) in Public Policy and Administration (Emergency Management) in 2020.

As a Disaster Management practitioner, Dr. Walters has participated in several training in the areas of Disaster Management, Business Continuity and Results Based Management. His background spans Education, Drug Prevention Education, Disaster Management, and Public Health.

Dr. Walters is familiar with the regional and international disaster management context and has travelled extensively and participated in many disaster management exercises.

Dr. Walters replaces Benedict Peters who retired in July 2022.
